Why did Yahuweh/Yehovah Create Man?

Miner Perkins

February 2019
12th Month 6018

For some time I have been trying to find somewhere in Scripture that Yahuweh/Yehovah gives the reason why he created the heavens and the earth, and why he created man. There are many concepts and lessons that Yahuweh/Yehovah reveals throughout Scripture about the nature of existence and life. There are many revelations about who Yahuweh/Yehovah is as a person. But is there somewhere in Scripture that Yahuweh/Yehovah himself reveals his reason why he created man in the first place?

In Genesis 6 Yahuweh/Yehovah repented and was sorry for having created man, because the thoughts of the heart of man are only evil continually. This concept is repeated again in Jeremiah 17. Looking forward into the future, Yahuweh/Yehovah knew what would happen when he created the man and the woman. He knew of the evil that man would do and of all of the suffering and pain and sorrow that would everybody would have to go through. And he could have prevented all of this pain and suffering that humans have had to endure for thousands of years by simply not creating humans in the first place. If he had never breathed the spirits of men and women into existence from the beginning, then no person would have ever had to suffer or experience pain or sorrow of any kind.

By simply never creating man to begin with, Yahuweh/Yehovah could have avoided having ever been sorry that he created man. By not creating the man and the woman, there would have been no reason for evil to have ever existed. All evil could have been avoided and all of the evil that man has done to one another would have never happened if Yahuweh/Yehovah had decided to never create the man and the woman to begin with. So then why did Yahuweh/Yehovah create man? What is the reason that he gives for creating the world of the heavens and the earth and creating man into it?

In the past I have searched through Scripture trying to find somewhere that Yahuweh/Yehovah reveals why he created man, and I could never find any place that he specifically gives his reason for creating the man and the woman. I have thought about and searched, and the only conclusion I could come to is that the most logical time for a person to reveal why they are doing something is at the very beginning when they begin to do it. The most logical place in Scripture for Yahuweh/Yehovah to reveal why he created man would be at the very beginning in Genesis when he creates man.

But even in the account of creation I could not find the answer to the reason why, until all of a sudden I remembered, "And Elohim saw that it was good." And suddenly I realized that Yahuweh/Yehovah did reveal the purpose why he created man right at the very beginning at creation. "And Elohim saw everything that He had made, and behold, it was very good." Yahuweh/Yehovah looked and saw that it is good to create man into existence, that it is good for man to exist. And because Yahuweh/Yehovah saw that it is good to create man into existence, and that it is good for man to exist, Yahuweh/Yehovah created man into existence and breathed the spirit of life within man into existence. Yahuweh/Yehovah is good as Yeshua says in Matthew 19, and because he is good and saw that creating man is good, he created man.

The reason why Yahuweh/Yehovah created man is as simple as this: Yahuweh/Yehovah created man because it is good to create man into existence and it is good for man to exist.